In such a disposable world, things that last are hard to find. Not so with The Busters. Rick Olson and Mike Mattson have been playing as a group for well over 20 years. Like any long-term relationship, things become second nature. For The Busters, it's jamming. This area band is so comfortable, they easily slide from a rockified foot stomping groove to the tastiest decrescendo with nothing more than a raise of an eyebrow. I guess that's what happens when you've played for over 25 years. Co-founders, Rick Olson and Mike Mattson will be adding a sax to the band's already expansive sound this year.

The Busters have enjoyed performing in several Bayfront Blues Festivals, Blues on the Range, and many clubs, concerts and parties. They have opened for the late, legend Luther Allison, Jimmy Thackery and The Drivers, and Anson Funderburgh and The Rockets with Sam Myers. The band had previously released a CD, "Waiting for the Tide". This year they are working on a new album. With three and four part harmonies, The Busters have been pleasing crowds throughout the region.

You want good? You want The Busters.

They will also be performing at Blackwoods Grill & Bar on Friday night after the festival and at Spirit Mountain Moosehead Saloon on Saturday.
